ALLIES READY IN WEST ZONE

New Offensive In France And Argonne On Part Of Germans To Find Allied Forces In Perfect Trim.

SCENE OF ACTIVE OPERATIONS EXPECTED TO SHIFT FROM EASTERN ZONE OF WAR

Great Significance Attaches To Destruction
Of Dardanelles Forts — Turks Again Break In On First Page—Allies Have Bigger Guns With Which To Meet Invaders.

London, February 26.—The impulsion is gaining ground among British and French military commanders that Germany is preparing for a fresh expenditure of energy in the land campaign along the western front.

Notwithstanding the recent successes of the Germans in the east they are apparently encountering as stubborn resistance as at any time.

The resiliency and recuperating powers of the Russian armies, according to theories advanced here, have convinced the German General Staff that it is wisest to adopt the defensive in the Russian campaign while waiting for another blow in the west.
This rush comes the allies will be well prepared to meet it.

During the last few months a decided change for the better has taken place in the forces of the allies, what with reinforcements, bigger guns and more complete equipment, lack of which was felt keenly during the early stages of the war.

Against the expectation of a new German general offensive in the west another theory is advanced in some quarters that the German attack in the east will be continued with the main idea of taking Warsaw from the north.

Przasnysz, 50 miles north of Warsaw, now being in the hands of the Germans, according to their claim, it is probable that a battle is now being fought along the river Orzyc, where the Russians are attempting to stay the Teutonic advance.

The Turks are again appearing in the war news, by virtue of the renewed fighting in the Caucasus. Mean-

ITALIANS IN RIOT

By Associated Press.
Genoa, Italy, via Rome, Feb. 26.—
One person was killed and many wounded during riots at the Veni-miglia, which resulted from demonstration in favor of the maintenance of neutrality by Italy.

A counter demonstration by persons desiring the intervention of Italy in the war led to a serious fight.

GERMANY IS FRAMING NOTE

Berlin, February 26.—Germany is framing a reply to the American note concerning food supplies for civilians in belligerent countries and mines and submarines.

The hope is growing in Berlin that the American proposals may form a basis for negotiations which may lead to an adjustment of the difficulties which have arisen.

FRANK CASE STILL PENDING

Washington, Feb. 26.—Arguments before the Supreme court on the right of Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of an Atlanta, Ga., factory girl, to be released from custody on a writ of habeas corpus were continued today.

Louis Marshall of New York, counsel for Frank in his argument taking up the allegations of mob violence at Frank's trial said:

"Our contention is that, in consequence of the circumstances which then existed, the character of which was recognized by the presiding judge terror ruled and fear sat trembling in the seat of justice. There was no longer a court; no longer a trial. The Court had been superceded by a judicial lynching."

indictment charging him with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was denied today by the Supreme court.

FARMER HAS SOLD WHEAT BELOW COST

By Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 26.—Joseph Leiter, noted wheat operator of 15 years ago testified today at the state inquiry into the increased cost of bread that American farmers have long been selling wheat for less than what it cost.

The farmer, Mr. Leiter said, has nothing to say concerning what price he shall receive for his product. That is usually done at the terminal markets or exchange, he added, and the Liverpool exchange, as the leading exchange of the world, usually fixes the price.

NEW METHOD TO DEAL WITH SALOON LICENSE

By Associated Press.

Columbus, O., Feb. 26.—Another method of decentralizing the saloon license system, by authorizing a board of five in each county, drawn from the jury wheel, to issue licenses, and a state inspector, under the Board of Agriculture to enforce regulation, is proposed in a bill introduced today by Representative Hake, of Trumbull county.

NIGHT RIDERS MURDER TWO

Madisonville, Ky., Feb. 26.—Dem-mett Woodruff, proprietor of a store, and his clerk were found dead here early today. Both men had been shot.

The authorities have no clue, but attribute the killing to night riders.

AGEDMAN HELD FOR MURDER

Aurora, Ill., Feb. 26.—A man 60 years old, described as being an eccentric, was held under arrest by the police today in connection with the murder of Miss Emma Peterson, who was found with her head crushed and jaw broken, a half block from her home last night.

It was the third mysterious murder of a woman in Aurora in 12 months.
In each case the victim has been slugged to death. In no case has the mur-derer been caught.

The man under arrest, John Mason, does odd jobs at a hospital for his board. He had been detained by the police early last night after he attempted to seize a young woman by the arm a block from the spot where Miss Peterson's body was found.

The girl had complained that she had been stopped by a man in the vicinity the night before. Her father followed her last night and trapped Mason. The police after questioning him released him. Two hours later the body of Miss Peterson was found.

S. O. S. CALL FROM LINER IN DISTRESS

By Associated Press.

New York, Feb. 26.—The steamer
Mongolian of the Allen Line, bound from Philadelphia for Glasgow, Scotland, is in distress 400 miles off Cape Race, according to a message received here today by steamship agents.

The Mongolian was said to be calling for help and leaking badly. The Red Cross liner Stephano is about 400 miles from Halifax and is rushing to the assistance of the Mongolian.

A message to the agents for the Stephano from the acting premier of Newfoundland said that the Mongolian had 200 passengers aboard.
The Premier's message said: "Urgently request that the Stephano be sent to assist the Mongolian, leaking badly and heading in for Halifax.
Consider action most urgent."

Paris, Feb. 26.—The destruction of the French torpedo boat destroyer Dague, in the Adriatic sea, was announced today by the French ministry of marines.

The official announcement follows:
"The French torpedo boat destroyer
Dague, while escorting a convoy with of-war in the Atlantic early in the

BECKER REFUSED ANOTHER TRIAL

New York, Feb. 26.—Charles Becker will not get a new trial on the ground that James Marshall, a young negro who testified in the second trial last May, repudiated in Philadelphia testimony that Becker talked to Jack Rose up in Seventh avenue nineteen days before Herman Rosenthal was assassinated.

Supreme Court Justice Weeks, who heard argument on the motion for a new trial by Martin T. Manton, Becker's counsel, made it sufficiently plain that Marshall's Philadelphia affidavit does not contradict his testimony and does not come within the legal requirements for newly discovered evidence. Judge Weeks announced, however, that he would receive affidavits and documents from the district attorney and give the case brief consideration before handing down a decision.

Allied Fleet Reduces Forts at Entrance to Dardanelles.

FEAT OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED

Positions Reduced Held Among the Strongest Fortifications in the World, but Enormous Efforts Will Be Required to Force Passage of Straits, Which Are Lined With Forts For Forty Miles.

London, Feb. 26.—The admiralty announced officially that the Turkish forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles have been reduced by the combined Anglo-French fleet of fairly-two ships, which have been bombarding the positions intermittently for more than two months.

The feat is regarded in official circles here as one of the most important accomplishments of the allied powers since the beginning of the war, and predictions are freely heard now that the fall of Constantinople will come before London. Naval experts, however, point out that this is merely the first step in a stupendous task, and that enormous efforts will be required to force a passage of the rest of the straits, which are lined with strong forts and modern defensive works for a distance of forty miles on both sides. Furthermore, the Turkish fleet, which under such conditions is not to be despised, is supposed to be stationed in Nagara roads, at the narrowest part of the waterway, and extensive mine fields have been planted at strategic points. The allied fleet is under command of Vice Admiral Carden, and is the strongest aggregation of warships on the allied side with the exception of the home fleet. It comprises vessels of all classes, including submarines and destroyers, and has a strong detachment of aeroplanes and seaplanes conveyed by the aeroplane ship Ark Royal.

The strongest units under the British flag are the battleships Agamemnon, Cornwallis, Vengeance and Triumph. Under the French flag are the battleships Suffren, Gaulois and Bouvet. Together, these vessels can throw a weight of metal that even the strong Turkish defenses could not long resist unaided.

The forts which have been destroyed are three in number, two at Seddul Bahr, on the north of the European side of the entrance, and one at Eum Kaleb, on the south or Turkish side. They have been regarded as among the strongest fortifications in the world and they have been vastly improved since the beginning of German influence in Turkey, German engineers having installed the latest Krupp ordnance and the most modern of defensive works. The forts themselves are mostly constructed of earth, and occupy a commanding position at the mouth of the straits of the Aegean sea.

Eleven miles from the entrance is the obstacle which the fleet will encounter, the lines of mines beginning at Kephaz and extending for a considerable distance to Nagara roads, just inside of the narrowest part of the straits, which are only 1-15 miles wide.

of administration and abolishing the job of secretary of that board. The house insisted on its amendments. The conferees are Senators Howard, Moore and Lloyd, Representatives Whittemore, Hays and Kimball.

Against opposition by Hulswitt of Cincinnati and Judge Clark of Warren to the severity of the penalty, the house gave the ginseng growers first aid to the injured by passing the Crisswell bill, making it a felony to tear up or destroy beds of ginseng and golden seal.

Contests Bill Up to Willis. The house agreed to senate amendments to the Kramer referendum elections contest bill, which now goes to the governor for his signature.

The house passed the Morris bill requiring counties to pay for patients in Mt. Vernon sanatorium for consumptives any discount of the $5 a week charge allowed by the state board of charities because of financial inability of the patients' relatives; and the Deaton bill for payment from public funds of the expenses of annual reunions of students of the Xenia orphanage.

At the request of northern Ohio stockmen, there will be a public hearing before the house agricultural committee Monday evening on the question of inserting in the Smith-Mallow bill, abolishing the state agricultural commission, provision for strengthening the power of the new board of agriculture to combat the foot and mouth disease.

The Vorhies coal bill, introduced in the senate, seeks to establish maximum freight rates on bituminous coal mined in Ohio and handled in intrastate trade at a figure said to be about 40 per cent lower than the rates now charged in such trade. The proposed rates are determined according to zones of haul and include switching, assembling and delivery service.

State Committeeman Peter W. Durr, representing the Hamilton county Republican organization, made a special trip to Columbus to assure Governor Willis of the support of his legislative program by the Cincinnati legislative delegation of thirteen.

FRENCH AGAIN SUCCESSFUL

Paris, Feb. 26.—The official communiqué says: "In the district of Lomartzyde our artillery silenced and badly damaged one of the enemy's batteries. In the region of Souvain and Beuzjour the operations have continued very favorable to us. We captured, notably, a German work north of Mesnil-les-Hurtus and dispersed by our fire an enemy column on the march southeast of Tahure, reached with our fire one of the enemy's batteries and blew up several caissons. In the Argonne, at the Bois-seau des Meurissons, near the Four de Paris, we destroyed a blockhouse. The Germans made an attempt to debouch from their lines near our works at Marie Therese, but their attack was stopped by our fire."

TREATIES REMAIN TO BE RATIFIED

Extra Session of Senate Likely After March 4.

Washington, Feb. 26.—There is a probability now that the senate will be called in extra session immediately after March 4. Hoping he will be able to force the ratification of the treaties with Colombia and Nicaragua, Secretary of State Bryan has been bringing pressure to bear in this direction. Another purpose of the special session of the senate will be to act on the commission nominations should these remain unconfirmed, as is likely, on March 4. Also the incoming senators, those elected last November, will be sworn in, and this will give them the opportunity to fill the patronage places now filled by appointees of the retiring senators.

Another proposal for the special session of the senate made itself known through a petition being circulated by senators favoring some closure rule. The senate, they contended, could meet in special session without necessitating a meeting of the house of representatives, also amend its rules so that filibusters could be prevented. Among the senators most determinedly opposed to the two treaties are Smith of Michigan, Borah of Idaho and Poindexter of Washington.

Champions of the ship purchase bill hope so to change it as to win back the support of the Democratic recalcitrants. This will necessitate an amendment to make the proposed undertaking distinctly a temporary one. Even if this is done, the administration senators have little hope of overcoming Republican opposition.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD COINS AND BANKNOTES

Beverly, N. J., Feb. 26.—Discovery of gold coins and banknotes hidden in old crockery, books and tin cans about the house prior to the double funeral of Edward Kimble, eighty-two, a farmer, and his aged wife, who died a few hours apart, has convinced relatives of the aged pair that their homestead at Coopertown, near here, conceals a hidden fortune. One thousand dollars already has been recovered. A thorough search will be made of the farmhouse and outbuildings.

OHIO BUILDING IS FORMALLY DEDICATED

San Francisco, Feb. 26.—The Ohio building at the exposition was dedicated with appropriate exercises. In the ceremonies the exposition was represented by President Moore; the state of California by Governor Johnson; the state of Ohio by Ralph D. Cole, who came as a special representative of Governor Willis of Ohio and the city of San Francisco by Mayor Rolph. Four of the eight commissioners from Ohio were present, and the Ohio Society of California, of which Clarence E. Baen is president, was represented by a large contingent of Ohioans.

Rufus Putnam, formerly of Newark, G., now a resident of California, raised the flag over the building. Putnam is a great-grandson of General Rufus Putnam, who commanded the forty-eight men who at noon of April 17, 1788, planted the first American colors on Ohio soil.

Mr. Cole read a telegram from Governor Willis which expressed his regrets at not being able to be present.

The German Successes

The folks who thought that Germany had already been conquered by the allied armies of Europe, judging from the success of the German armies in East Prussia, in Poland and Russia and the remarkably successful raids of the German submarines in the North Sea and along the English coast, seem to be entitled to at least one more thought on the subject.

Not since the war begun and the German armies made their initial drive through Belgium into France, pushing on despite the most determined resistance, until the very environs of Paris were reached, have the forces of the Kaiser shown so much aggressive fighting successfully carried on.

Russia has been literally overwhelmed in the East and the survivors of the Czar's army driven entirely off of German soil.

The success of the eastern campaign will enable Germany to rush her legions back again to the western battle line where the allies are still stubbornly hammering away at forts and entrenchments.

The activity of those little marvels among the fighting machines of the sea—the submarines—has made it hazardous, to say the least, for Lord Kitchener to transport his "new army" of a million men to the shores of France and thence to the battle fields of Europe.

Should Germany be able to make the English Channel and the North Sea too dangerous for the transports to carry the men of Kitchener to France and then strike with the hosts released from the east battle line, she will strike a blow that will be certain to prolong the war indefinitely and possibly enable her to humble her foes.

An Unpopular Proposal

The proposal to destroy that law providing for the election of judges on non-partisan and separate ballots which has done so much to lift the judiciary of the state out of the mire of politics should meet with universal condemnation. The sentiment against the proposal is growing every day and every hour, and legislators are being besieged from all sides not to tamper with the laws relating to the election of judges.

Nothing is more dangerous to the liberties of the people than a partisan and biased judiciary. Very few people indeed in Ohio, aside from the professional politicians, favor putting the judiciary back in politics. Not only should the judges of our courts be free from political influences, but the manner of their selection to office should be such as to keep them free from any suspicion of being under political control.

There is no good reason why every individual who holds a judicial position should not maintain his political preferences, in fact under every good reason he should have his political preferences, but he should not incur any political indebtedness to any party or individual on account of his official position.

No one thing has wielded a more powerful influence in restoring the confidence of the people in the judiciary of the state than has the present manner of choosing judges.

The proposal of the politicians to walk backward and put the judiciary in politics once more has caused a protest to arise, the volume of which has amazed even the politicians who proposed such a monumental act of folly.

It is quite likely now that the proposed destruction of the non-partisan judiciary law will take its place along with the many other proposals made to the present General Assembly which have not been accorded the cordial reception of legislative adoption.

The people of Ohio are demanding still further reform in judicial procedure and in the method of choosing judges.

They want no "backward step" taken in that matter either.

Ex-President Taft's Position

That was a splendid speech of ex-President William H. Taft advising all patriotic American citizens to stand loyally behind the present national administration in its foreign policy.

In advising all patriotic American citizens to forget partisan differences and to stand united on the greater issue of national welfare the former president furnished proof of his highness and fairness.

In times of assured peace and abundant prosperity when men can play politics, if they are of that mind, without imperiling the lives and property of the American people there is not so much objection if everything the administration does is met with complaint and criticism, but this is not the time for going to the people with trumped up issues merely to create a storm of complaint against the administration.

No matter if there are some acts of minor consequence which do not exactly meet with our view of what should or should not be done, this is the time to forget them, not to dwell upon and enlarge upon them for the sole purpose of creating opposition.

These are times when the rights of the nation and her people are supreme to the immediate future of any political organization or any individual; when the politically ambitious must wait until the crisis is past before urging their claims to preference; when men must rise equal to the occasion, else they will be dwarfed by comparison with the men who demonstrate their real size.

Ex-President Taft in taking the position he did has done much to strengthen his claim on popular esteem.

Poetry For Today

WHERE THE WEST BEGINS.

Out where the handclasp's a little stronger,
Out where a smile dwells a little longer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where the sun is a little brighter,
Where the snows that fall are a trifle whiter,
Where the bonds of home are a wee bit tighter,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the skies are a trifle bluer,
Out where friendship's a little truer,
That's where the West begins.
Out where a fresher breeze is blowing,
Where there's laughter in every streamlet flowing,
Where there's more of reaping and less of sowing,
That's where the West begins.

Out where the world is in the making,
Where fewer hearts with despair are aching,
That's where the West begins,
Where there's more of singing and less of sighing,
Where there's more of giving and less of buying,
And a man makes friends without half trying,
That's where the West begins.

Gun Power at Waterloo.

As to gun power at the time of Waterloo, two facts of guidance: The British drill sergeants of the day taught recruits to hold their fire "until they could see the whites of the eyes of the enemy." That would make the best musketry range, I should say, about twenty-five yards. "Brown Bess" was not of much use beyond sixty yards. Judging by all the evidence, as to big pieces, then, as now, naval guns were superior to field artillery, and Nelson loved to get in his broadsides at sixty yards! I believe that 600 yards was counted the limit of effective naval gun fire then. Field artillery range would be less, probably much less. The enormous increase in the effective range of guns since is due, first, to explosives with greater power and more controllable power; second, the invention of rifled barrels and breechloading, and, third, stronger alloys of metals.—Frank Fox in London Nation.

The Greatest Show on Earth.

Dear Luke:
Step right in, gents! Five cents is the fee.
It's the world's greatest show, just take it from me.
Here we have the middle aged spread, And we'll give you a peep at the real corn fed.
Those humorous twins, the fool and the sage,
Will do funny stunts on the Byplay page. Don't overlook Luke's See-more skirt, And that wonder of wonders, the Princess Flirt.
Here we will show you the corner kalf, And there you'll find father, I'll vouch safe.
Here's the summer elbow that prods and shocks, There's the old fashioned man who wears wool socks.
There are no things to worry about. Laugh if you're thin, it will make you stout.
We conclude with the Byplay minstrel show. Could you get more for the money, I'd like to know?

Washington, Feb. 26.—Senator McCumber of North Dakota had an amendment adopted to the agricultural bill providing $10,000,000 for the establishment of a bureau of farm credits. This practically incorporates in the agricultural appropriation bill a rural credits measure. The money is to be used for purchasing notes secured by first mortgages on agricultural land. National or state banks which desire to do so may act as agents of the bureau of farm credits, advancing the money to those obtaining the mortgages and transmitting the notes and mortgages to the bureau, which in turn will give the banks the money they advanced on the mortgages. The money is to be distributed among the various states according to agricultural population.

A BABEL OF TONGUES.

The World's Languages Now and What May Be in the Future.

How many men, if asked how many languages there are in the world, could give anything like an accurate answer? The average man's knowledge or ability to speak languages rarely exceeds two besides his native tongue. It may appear strange, but it is nevertheless true, that there are over 4,000 languages spoken by mankind, while the number of dialects exceeds this. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil, and in Mexico the Nahuatl is broken up into some 700 dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo, and in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. Let us assume that fifty dialects, on an average, belong to each language and we have the colossal total of 200,000 linguistic abilities.

A century hence the probability is that there will only be four languages of importance in the world. Central Europe may produce a newer and more straightforward German language. Imperial English may reign alone over the North American continent, while a more businesslike Spanish will be used in South American states. Then Russia may take on some more rich Slavonic dialect, which will blend the races of eastern Europe and central Asia into a harmonious federation. So that in future these four languages will enter into what may be a never ending competition.—Exchange.

WESLEYAN GLEE CLUB AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT

Tonight the Ohio Wesleyan Glee club will put on its annual musical performance in High school auditorium and all day there has been a mad rush for tickets. The Wesleyan program has long since come to be recognized by Washington music lovers as one of the chief musical events of the season's entertainment and with several new and attractive features added the concert tonight promises to be the best ever offered here.

In addition to a well diversified program of chorus, quartet and solo vocal numbers the entertainment will be pleasantly supplemented by a clever little musical skit entitled, "The Professor's Welcome," in which Maynard Craig of this city, will be seen in the title role.

The piece was composed especially for the Glee club by a Wesleyan man and is a farcical exploit of college life. T. Harold Craig, who appears in the cast as Bugs Night, a student, has wired that it will be impossible for him to be in tonight's performance. Winchel Craig, topmost angle of the revered Craig trio, will not appear in the less dignified playlet but will be easily placed among the baritones in the vocal program of classics.

Another feature of the program will be a reading by Miss Ruth Jackson, a talented and versatile elocutionist, well known to local people.

AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION
SUED BY DETERMINED FARMER

Widespread Interest Attracted by New Turn in Greene County Clash Between Farmer Who Was Arrested for Open Defiance of Quarantine and the State Agricultural Commission—May Quarantine Entire Greene County.

A new turn to the efforts of Sherman Lewis, Greene county farmer, to hold a public sale in open defiance to the state quarantine, occurred Thursday afternoon, when he sued the Agricultural Commission.

The entire trouble is given by the Xenia Republican, which says in part:

"Denying that any pretended order of the Ohio State Agricultural Commission has ever been issued prohibiting the holding of a public sale of personal property in any portion of Greene county, and that if such pretended order has been made it is null and void, Sherman Lewis, well known Jefferson township farmer, arrested by the state for violating quarantine regulations, has brought suit for temporary restraining order against the Agricultural Commission of Ohio, and Frank Rigdon and D. M. Swinehart.

"The suit was filed in the Common Pleas court at 2 o'clock this afternoon by Judge Marcus Shoup and in the absence of Judge C. H. Kyle a temporary restraining order was allowed by Judge C. F. Howard of the Probate court. Mr. Lewis furnished the usual bond of $110.

"The plaintiff alleges that he sold his farm last October 14, and contracted to give possession by March 1. He advertised his sale and on February 20, when he attempted to hold said sale he was arrested by the defendant Frank Rigdon, and was arraigned in Probate court and required to give bond. On February 24, he says the action was dismissed. He says the arrest was made on the grounds that the plaintiff had violated some pretended order of the Agricultural commission prohibiting the holding of public sales. The plaintiff denies that such an order exists, and declares that if it does it is null and void. Plaintiff says he is compelled to hold a sale of his personal property and give possession of the farm, and has asked permission of the commission to do so, not because he recognizes said order of any effect, but in order to avoid litigation, and that the agent positively refused to issue a permit; plaintiff says he has no political influence or any weight of authority with the agents or commission and is therefore unable to obtain a permit, whilst others situated in similar circumstances to this plaintiff and who as plaintiff believes have wide political influence and a large personal acquaintance have procured permits to hold sales in spite of the pretended order.

"The plaintiff says that the commission has acted arbitrarily and in a vindictive manner for no other reason than through a spirit of hostility toward plaintiff. He further says that by reason of his inability to hold the sale he will suffer irreparable damage.

"The petition winds up by saying that the agents of the commission are now trying to prevent the plaintiff from holding the sale any time in the future under threat of arrest and takes a well directed slap at the agricultural commission in the following paragraph: "By way of illustrating their tyrannical, unjustifiable and inexcusable conduct and by way of demonstrating the entire unfitness, and incompetency of members of the commission their agents have publicly announced that notwithstanding the fact that there is no contagious disease in the county at this time, that if plaintiff holds his sale within the quarantine district the entire county will be placed under quarantine, and forbidden to go on with their agricultural pursuits. The plaintiff asks for a temporary restraining order against the agricultural commission and Drs. Frank Rigdon and D. M. Swinehart, its agents."

SAMPLE LIGHTS
ARE ATTRACTING
MUCH ATTENTION

Washington citizens can now behold the new lights with which it is proposed to light the city under the new contract with the Washington Gas & Electric Company.

Six of the new lights, each of 600 candle power, were installed on North street, beginning at the intersection of East and North and extending to the Christian church corner, and were lighted for the first time Thursday night, flooding the street with light such as it has never before received.

Friday the work of installing five lights each of 250 candle power, was completed on Temple and Market streets, and two alley lights in the alley leading by the mitten factory, also were installed. The alley lights are of 80 candle power, and are expected to light the alleys almost as well as the streets, making it virtually impossible for crime to be committed under cover of darkness.

The new lights will attract no little attention, as Washington citizens are looking forward to relief from the antiquated system of lights with which it has been incumbered for so many years.

AN "ADVERTISE IT
NOW" MOVEMENT

That's a fine idea our western friends are boosting—the "buy it now" plan.

But in sales and advertising circles I consider that the words need translation—they should read advertise it now.

My own say-so about this has the support of an international financial authority, Roger Babson. He makes clear that advertising is more foresighted if it is done for a cycle of time in advance, and if the slack time is made the signal not to cut but to add to advertising pressure.

Advertise it now!

It's when the factory needs work that advertising is an investment to prevent loss on fixed charges. When a factory, like Ford's is choked with orders, then, like Ford, it's not poor business to slacken advertising. Certainly Ford, as well as the manufacturer without orders, who both quit advertising, can't both be right.

A reserve fund or new capital to build a new factory or raise salaries is not nearly so important as a reserve fund or new capital to invest in advertising during lean times. At such times it bears a double value—increased power during special need for the present, and increased pull for future good will.

Advertise it now!

Every factor is primed now to institute a movement nation-wide among business men to recognize the inevitability of returning prosperity on a large scale and the definite profit which flows from prior start in establishing good will.

I warn everybody that two years from now the greatest swarm of advertisers ever known will be tumbling all over themselves.

Advertise it now!

DEEDS PROVE GOOD
REVENUE PRODUCERS

Thirty-eight dollars in stamps attached to one document of transfer of title to realty is the record so far at the Recorder's office, where the war tax stamps must be affixed to deeds before accepted.

A 50c stamp for each $500 worth of unincumbered property is the rate of tax, and as many of the deeds are to realty worth many thousands of dollars, it is not an uncommon thing to find the back of the deed plastered liberally with 50c, $1 or even $5 stamps.

In no instance, unless the deed is for property worth less than $100, is a deed filed with less than a 50c stamp attached.

VONDERHEIDE LAW

Ohio has always been classed as one of the real progressive states of the Union.

Its progress has been due, to a great extent, to its willingness to learn from others. Ohio men have always acted on the principle that anything which seemed to stand for greater security for the lives and happiness of the people was worthy of consideration. This is why the Buckeye State has earned the reputation of being a state that stands for the welfare of its citizenship.

During the past two years many of the busiest and most prominent men in the state have been endeavoring to get comprehensive flood protection in Ohio.

Untiring efforts have been given to the framing of the most perfect law in the world for that purpose, and as it stands today the authorities throughout the world will take this Ohio law as the basis for flood conservation legislation.

The Vonderheide Flood Prevention Law was passed by the last legislature. It was not fathered by any political party. It is the result of deliberate action on the part of men who had the best interests of Ohio people at heart.

Many States Want It.

Many requests for copies of this law have been received from all sections of the country, and within the next few years we may expect to see many states placing it upon their statute books.

This law is not the result of a haphazard action. It represents the efforts of some of the greatest legal lights in the United States. With such men as Judge Oakley of Chicago, John A. McMahon of Dayton, O., and John F. Dillon of New York as its sponsors, it may well be considered a complete instrument, and other states realize this perhaps more than we do.

The people of Ohio must acknowledge that ours is a flood state, and that until the Vonderheide flood prevention law was enacted it was a flood state without a flood law.

Therefore, the duty of this great commonwealth is plain. It must retain this beneficial law on the statute books in its present form, in order that the people may be allowed to work out their flood problems in a sound and legal manner.

Non-Constructive Interference.

But there has been interference. There always is when a progressive move is on foot. The interests which oppose the Vonderheide law have contested it through the courts of the state, and in every action they have been bested. The courts have held the law to be constitutional and just.

These same interests are now attempting to amend it by passing the Quinlisk and Garver bills through the legislature. These measures would amend the law in a manner that would destroy its usefulness, and in return they offer no substitute, nor even a constructive suggestion.

Legislation of this character works harm in two ways. It not only takes up the time of the legislators, but it ties up work that should be going forward to protect the valleys of our state against future flood disasters.

Work For Unemployed.

About thirty million dollars which might now be going into circulation, paying for wages and material, is tied up by the interference with this law. This money might now be making it possible for thousands of men throughout the state to obtain employment just when they need it the most.

Further, not one cent of this money is to be obtained through state appropriation. It will be paid by the owners of the property which is benefited by the flood prevention work, and it will be spent under the jurisdiction of the courts. It is simply a case where people are asking for the privilege of working out their own salvation at their own expense.

NEARLY 1,600 PERSONS FED AT MEN'S ANNUAL SUPPER

Twentieth Annual Supper Breaks All Previous Records—Peanut Fed Turkey Causes Much Merriment—Biggest Event of Similar Kind Ever Successfully Carried Out in This Part of Ohio—Men Are Commended for First Supper for Which No Donations Were Received.

Splendidly successful and altogether distinctive as have been the annual George Washington suppers given by the men of Grace church, ever since their inauguration, the twentieth annual supper of Thursday night broke all previous records and was unquestionably the biggest event of the kind ever pulled off in this section of the state.

It was a wonderful supper, with 500 people served before 6 o'clock and instead of the 1500 planned for, 1600 plates were served, the last one as bountiful and hot as the first.

It was a supper to beggar description and almost uncanny in the way the great throng of people was cared for, entertained and fed with the same expert management as if it had been the ordinary supper of a few hundred plates.

Before half past four o'clock people began pouring into the church—at five o'clock the auditorium was full—by six o'clock balconies and Sunday school rooms were crowded and from the appearance of the mass of folk the men had before them an impossible task.

But everything moved off as if by clockwork. A perfect system carried everything to happy completion.

The only hitch was some confusion in the numbering system, but the people were so well entertained by the fine concert program that waiting was an easy matter.

The basement dining room presented a brilliant picture of colonial days. Flags large and small draped the walls and pillars and framed pictures of Washington. The tables, beautifully decked in cut flowers and potted plants glowed with kleidoscopic colorings.

The men, all wearing three-cornered George Washington hats, in the red, white and blue, and powdered periwigs of the colonial period, added greatly to the picturesque effect.

Among the novelties introduced in decoration the "Fish and Game" table scored with its "coon up a tree" big fish, squirrels and other suggestive features.

At the first tables served there were seated 56 old soldiers, the personal guests of Mr. Wm. M. Campbell, the chairman of the General Committee. Each of these veterans was presented with a handsome silk flag and song book.

The supper itself was great; the baked ham pronounced the finest flavored ever served; the piping hot potatoes the wonder of the guests; the flaky biscuits delicious, and every thing as good as could be. Of course the feature of the supper which had provoked speculation and aroused much merriment was the "peanut fed turkey." These cunning little miniature turkeys, filled with peanuts, were taken home by the guests, the women also receiving carnations and the men tiny flags. Attractive menu cards were also given as souvenirs.

Upstairs pretty "Martha Washington" sold home made candy in booths flaunting patriotic decoration.

The musical program included vocal solos by Misses Edith Gardner and Ada Woodward, Messrs L. L. Bowman, Carl Summers; quartette, Horace Ireland, J. H. Hicks, E. H. Burch, Dr. L. P. Howell; pipe organ Miss Minnie Light; orchestra, Messrs Kessler and Ryan, Messrs Shasteen, Smith, Kneisley, Whelpley, May, Miller, Speaks, Johnson. The orchestral numbers included trombone, cornet and violin solos.

The program was throughout delightful.

Nothing connected with the supper impressed itself more effectively than the splendid response made on the part of the men of the church, and many outside friends, for what ever service was desired of them.

Mr. Wm. M. Campbell, who stepped into the place of manager of the general committee, formerly occupied by the late Col. B. H. Millikan, made a thorough success, not only in his expert generalship, but also in the originality of many of the ideas which added to the evening's success. The loyalty of his assistants, both of the general committee and of all committees was the supper's biggest asset.

The twentieth annual supper was the first supper ever given where no donations or solicitations were made.

It established a new precedent and a remarkable one in that the committee served the big supper without going down into their pockets to meet deficits. For previous suppers there has been extensive soliciting and yet the committee had to hold the bag.

The supper of Thursday night was fine and worth far more than the quarter charged, yet not so extravagant that the expenses could not be met.

The idea of these suppers is purely social, bringing the people of the church and community together for a pleasurable social evening and to get better acquainted with each other.

THANKS EXTENDED.

The committee having charge of the Men's Supper wish to thank every one for their services and loyal support. We feel that Mr. Flowers, Mr. Sauer and Mr. Griffith deserve especial thanks as a large part of the success of the menu was due to their kindness. The bakery ovens were absolutely necessary to a baked supper. Mr. Flowers baked our ham and beans and Mr. Sauer, the potatoes. Mr. Griffith and his chef took the responsibility of telling when the potatoes were exactly right to finish at the church.

The chef remained to the finish, and there was still one red hot potato in the oven when all was over.

COMMITTEE.

G. A. R. EXTENDS THANKS. The G. A. R. veterans extend their thanks and appreciation to Mr. Campbell in the following words:

Hon. Wm. Campbell, president Men's Supper Association. The comrades of the R. B. Hayes Post No. 92, G. A. R., and John M. Bell Post No. 119, G. A. R., in joint meeting assembled, hereby tender to you their high appreciation of the generous hospitality extended to them on the occasion of the Men's Supper, February 25th, 1915.

This invitation to the veterans of Washington C. H., given in memory of our departed commander and revered comrades goes to the heart of every ex-soldier of the Civil war who touched elbows, either figuratively or direct with this great-hearted comrade and leader in Grand Army circles.

May his memory be kept ever green. Thanking you for your warm-hearted regard for the old comrades of Col. B. H. Millikan and with the highest esteem for you personally, we are in F. C. and L.,

ERRORS OF SCULPTORS.

Statues in England Noted For Crude Blunders in Modeling.

Some of the statues in public places in England are notable for certain unique symbols or glaring errors in modeling. One of the former kind is the statue of Sir Anthony Ashley at Wimborne, Dorset. Carved out of a stone at the feet of the figure is a faithful representation of a cabbage, indicating that Sir Anthony introduced the vegetable from Holland into England.

Even more peculiar is the carving on one of the four panels on the Queen Victoria statue in George square, Glasgow. The subject is the knight of James Anderson, the lord provost of that city. As no sword was available the ceremony was performed with an umbrella, and the substitute has been copied by the sculptor. This same statue is incorrect in one important detail. The stately pose of the horse is negative by the position of the hind legs—a position which is only possible when a horse is racing at full speed.

Perhaps the worst equestrian statue in the world is that erected in front of Trinity college, Dublin, to the memory of King William III. Among other faults, one of the forelegs of the horse is straight and the other curved considerably, yet both hoofs meet side by side on the pedestal.—London Spare Moments.

THE BOY FARMER

Or a Member of the Corn Club
By ASA PATRICK

Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.

SYNOPSIS.

Sam Powell, inspired by a government agent, plans to make a scientific farmer of himself and to compete for prizes awarded to the Boys' Corn Club.

Sam works hard cleaning up and fertilizing the worn-out farm. Miles Fagan ridicules scientific farming, but lets his boy join the corn club.

While blowing out stumps Sam saves Joe Watson's life. Sam plans his contest acre of corn and other crops and the stocking of his farm with cattle.

CHAPTER IV.

IT was the 1st of April when the Powells moved back to the little farm, and there was a look of real happiness on Mrs. Powell's face when she was once more settled in that quiet nook. The farm lay back from the public road and was screened from view by a grove of trees in the pasture. The weather beaten farmhouse was also sheltered and shaded by a cluster of wide spreading oaks.

But Sam and Florence were no less pleased than their mother to be in the country again. To live in the country and to know the ways of nature is to love it always.

Before moving, however, they all had made several trips to the old home and done much work in the garden, orchard and field. The old orchard, after receiving special treatment by Sam, surprised Mrs. Powell so that she began to look on her son as a very remarkable boy. When they first looked at it in February it was an unpromising sight. Dead weeds and briars stood shoulder high, sprouts had grown up around the trees, and it looked as if there was but little life left in the orchard, so many were the broken and dead boughs.

"You might as well chop down the old trees," said Mrs. Powell. "They are nearly all dead anyway."

"Don't you believe it!" exclaimed Sam. "You just wait till I get through with those old trees. They look mighty shabby now, but they'll come to life if you give them a chance. I've just been reading about how to work over old orchards. Why, mother, if I was to cut them down and plant young trees it would be three or four years before we would get any fruit."

"Yes, I know that," replied his mother. "but I don't think these old trees will bear any more."

"Maybe not," said Sam, "but we can try them. I can plant young trees in the place of the ones that are entirely dead."

So he set to work, mowing down briars and weeds and raking them into piles and burning them. When this was done he took a saw and a pair of pruning shears and began on the trees. All the dead and broken limbs were cut away. The orchard had been neglected so long that there were many dead boughs, and it was a different looking place when Sam finished pruning. The next thing he did was to buy some chemicals and make a solution after a formula given in one of the government bulletins. With this solution and a hand sprayer he went over the orchard and sprayed each tree from top to bottom. Next he broke and harrowed the ground, and the old orchard had one more chance to live and thrive for it was well pruned, the ground in fine condition, and the spraying had killed all the insects that were on the trees.

Sam, like his mother, felt rather doubtful about the orchard, but when they moved there in April they found the old trees a mass of pink blooms.

"Look, Florence!" exclaimed Mrs. Powell when she saw the trees looking so beautiful. "Sam is sure a wonder. I didn't think he could do it."

"Look, Florence! Sam is sure a wonder."

nothing like what she's worth, and can't find a place to leave her."

"I'd like to get some Berkshire pigs," Sam remarked. "What do you ask for the sow?"

"Well, right this minute I'd take $20 for her. The pigs are sure to be worth twice that much."

"That's cheap enough," said Sam. "but I haven't the money. How would it suit you to let me keep her? That in the pasture down there is hog proof. The creek runs through it, and there's plenty of shade and water and no stock that would bother her."

"That's a good place. I hadn't thought of it. Maybe we can make a deal. I'll tell you what I'll do, Sam. You keep the sow and look after her, and when the pigs are old enough you ship four of them to me and you may have the sow and the rest of the pigs."

"I'll do it," said Sam, and the bargain was closed.

About a month later the old sow was going about the pasture with ten pretty black and white faced pigs following. Under Sam's care they grew like weeds in wet weather. When they were old enough to wean, which was twelve weeks, as the young farmer learned from his reading, he shipped the four pigs to their owner. Of the six pigs left he picked out three of the finest, two girls and a male, to keep. The other three he advertised for sale in the county paper, and the pigs being of good stock, he had no trouble in selling them for $10 each. One buyer, coming after they had been sold, tried to get Sam to put a price on the three he had saved. But the boy refused to sell. In deed, he was so proud of his pigs that an offer of many times their worth would not have induced him to part with them. And in this he showed that he was wise.

But, proud as Sam Powell was of his thoroughbreds, there was something else to which he was giving a lot of thought and work. That something was the acre of corn that was to compete for prizes offered to the Boys' Corn Club.

Miles Fagan had promised his son, Bob, that he might join the corn club and enter an acre in the contest if he would clear the land of stumps. Bob did join, but the corn was not planted this year. For after working with grubbing hoe and ax from sunup till sundown for many days, clearing the acre of the big, deep rooted stumps, Mr. Fagan told him unconcernedly that he'd just have to have that patch of ground. If Bob still wanted to plant some corn he'd have to clear another acre.

It was a cruel, mean trick to play on a boy and enough to discourage anybody, but Bob set to work on another acre. It was too late, however, to plant the corn when he had finished it, and he had to drop out of the contest for this year.

But Miles Fagan was beginning to learn that he didn't know very much about growing corn. The patch across the fence from his was teaching him something.

Sam planted his contest acre with the seed furnished by the agent about the middle of March. The rows were four feet apart and the stalks in the rows eighteen inches. He cultivated it the first time when the corn was just beginning to come up by going over it with a harrow. This did not hurt the plants, except one here and there, and it killed all the little weeds and grass that were just starting. How that corn did grow! It sprang up almost like mushrooms. It seemed to Sam that the dark green stalks fairly laughed in the loose ground that he had made so rich with manure and ashes.

The young farmer cultivated the ground level and never allowed a weed to take root on that acre. He pulled the suckers whenever they appeared and went over it once with a hoe, but most of the work was done with a plow. The first time or two he plowed it tolerably deep, but as the corn grew larger and the little roots began to run out across the middles he plowed very shallow to keep from cutting the roots and injuring the corn. But there was another reason for shallow plowing. Deep plowing in summer causes the soil to lose moisture when the crop needs it most.

Sam stirred the top of the ground till there was a layer of dust to hold the moisture below. He wanted to keep all the water he could for the growing corn, and he knew that the sun can draw water up through a crust in a hurry, but can't draw it through a layer of dust—or mulch, as it is called. He kept the soil this way. He never plowed when it was too wet, for that makes clods. But after rains, as soon as it was dry enough, or when weeds began to appear he went over the patch with plow or barrow and stirred the surface till it was all broken up and loose.

Bill Gooch and Miles Fagan had quit laughing at Sam. They and others in the neighborhood often stopped in passing and looked at the corn and wondered.

"I reckon it's jes' an accident," Bill remarked to Mr. Fagan one day, "but that boy's kinder got one on us. Miles. I told 'im before he come out here that he couldn't grow peas on that ground. But, dog my cats, if that ain't as fine corn as I ever saw. That acre patch is better than the rest, but I tell you they ain't none o' his crops to be sneezed at."

"I don't exactly understand it," Miles Fagan replied, "but jes' between you and me, Bill, I guess they must be somethin' in the government's way o' doin' things. You know that kid don't know nothin' about farmin' except what the agents told 'im. But look at that acre of corn and then look at mine across the fence. And it ain't in the land. I know that. This land o' mine, if anything, is better than his. Of course it's bound to be in the fertilizer he's usin' and the way he's cultivated the ground."

The comparison suggested by Mr. Fagan was enough to make any one stop and think. Sam's corn was nearly waist high and had big stalks, while that of his neighbor in the field across the fence was no more than two feet high and the stalks were spindling.

But Fagan understood the cause of the difference in the two crops a good deal better after Mr. Burns happened along one day a little later and stopped to talk to him and Sam, who were working in their respective fields.

"Hello, Mr. Fagan!" the government agent called out as he rode up. "How is it your corn is behind Sam's here?"

Fagan grinned. "It's because he planted earlier," he said.

"How much earlier?"

"Two or three days," replied the farmer.

Mr. Burns laughed. "That won't do, Mr. Fagan," he said. "Two or three days' difference in planting would make hardly any difference in corn."

At this point Bill Gooch, who had been plowing near by, came up and

"Well, there you have it in a nutshell."

stood listening. Bill was working better this year under the example and influence of Sam.

"Well, I don't know what else could 'a' made the difference in my corn and his," Mr. Fagan replied, "if it wasn't the plantin'."

"I think I know," said Mr. Burns. "How deep did you break your land?"

"Rout four inches."

"How deep did you break yours, Sam?"

"About a foot, wasn't it, Bill?" Sam asked in turn.

"Well, it wouldn't miss it much," affirmed Bill. "That old plow was up to the beam."

BREVITY OF ENGLISH.

Its Advantage In This Respect Over French and German.

In an international report, printed in parallel columns in French, German and English, the three versions being exact translations of each other, the English report invariably finished first; sometimes it won by a whole page. As a rule, the French report was the most diffuse.

This brevity of English is partly explained by the fact that English is made up to an extraordinary extent of words of one syllable. Its nouns having (unlike the German) lost all their inflections except the possessive "s," have become mere roots, a very large proportion of them monosyllabic. In Germany a monosyllabic root practically always gets an extra syllable tacked on by way of case ending. In the second place English has little of the elaborate and explicit machinery of structure that French has, so it saves space in prepositions and such paraphernalia. Instead, English has what the grammarians call incipient agglutination—that is, sticking words together in groups without either prepositions or case endings to connect them.

An example of the former kind of brevity is a word like "earthquake," two syllables, compared with the German "erdbeben," three syllables, and the French "tremblement de terre," five syllables. An example of the terseness of English would be a phrase like, "I have been to the house and have now come back;" every word a single syllable. In a telegram this would be just as intelligible in the form "Been house now back." You cannot carry that sort of thing far in any other European language.—Manchester Guardian

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel. A practicing physician for 37 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative. No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action. If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—back headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime. Thousands take one or two every night to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

British Admiralty Suspends All Sailings to United States.

SUBMARINE ATTACKS FEARED

People of Great Britain Expressing Opposition to the American Note, Which is Under Consideration by the Cabinet—Believed Destruction of Neutral Ships Will Embroil Germany With Neutral Nations.

Liverpool, Feb. 26.—All New York sailings have been suspended temporarily by the British admiralty. All the regular liners booked to sail from Liverpool, London or Glasgow for New York on Saturday are to be held in port.

London, Feb. 26.—The American note, which in general seeks to bring about an understanding regarding the war zone prescribed by Germany and the shipment of foodstuffs designed for the civilian population of the belligerent countries, was considered at a meeting of the cabinet, but thus far no intimation as to the official attitude toward it can be obtained. It is expected, however, that the British reply will be ready within a day or two.

It is understood that the draft of the note to neutral states advising them of the nature of the reprisals which it was decided to adopt in reply to the German submarine blockade already had been drawn up, but the arrival of the new American note caused a temporary suspension of this matter.

The press and public, however, on the supposition that President Wilson has suggested that Great Britain should not carry out her threat to place an embargo on foodstuffs for Germany and that, in return, Germany should not enforce her submarine blockade against the British Isles, have already expressed their disapproval of acceptance of such a proposition.

It is believed here that the destruction of neutral ships and cargoes will embroil Germany with neutral countries and that in the long run the losses which the allies will suffer will be more than offset by the anger aroused on the part of the neutrals and the possible refusal of countries such as Norway to allow goods to be shipped from their ports to Germany.

This and other diplomatic questions, such as the possible entry of Italy and Roumania into the war, which again is being discussed, have largely overshadowed the news from the battlefields, which in military circles is considered of paramount importance.

One of the witnesses testified that Mr. Lattanner disregarded his agreement with the committee representing the clearing house, to the effect that the Security should be liquidated without closing its doors after the Columbus banks had agreed to advance the money to pay all the depositors. Lawyers' fees were held by witnesses needless and excessive.

Berlin, Feb. 26.—A dispatch from Brussels says that the German government, General Von Bissing has authorized the sequestration of all business enterprises in Belgium owned by subjects or citizens of nations with which Germany is at war.

MERCHANTMEN
GO TO BOTTOM

London, Feb. 26.—The seventh day of the German blockade of the British Isles brought news of the destruction of several more mercantile vessels, making a total of fourteen ships of British and neutral nationality sunk or damaged by mines or torpedoes in the first week of the submarine warfare which began on Feb. 18. The latest victims are the steamer Depford and the Western Coast, both British craft. The Depford was sunk off Scarborough, in the North sea, and the Western Coast went down in the danger zone off Beachy Head, in the English channel. Indications are that German submarines were responsible.

The Depford was blown up with a loss of one life. Fifteen members of the crew were landed at South Shields. The engineer of the ship says he was at his post when an explosion broke the ship in half. The Western Coast was sunk much in the same manner as was the Depford. All of her crew were saved.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR CORN FOR FEEDING

Probably not since there was a marked shortage in the corn crop has the demand for corn for feeding live stock been so great as at the present time, and in some communities in the county the feeding has been so heavy that corn is being hauled for six, eight and even ten miles, and fancy prices are being paid by the farmers who are after the corn.

Tens of thousands of head of hogs have been fed off during the past few months, and many more thousands are now being fed for market between this and the first of May.

One man estimates that, regardless of quarantine, the number of hogs sold out of the county has been by far the greatest in the county's history. The same man states that it is his belief that the assurance given by the state cholera eradication work in this county was responsible for the enormous numbers of hogs raised and later marketed.

EXPENSIVE TO MIRROR NATURE.

Rex Beach's great American romance, "The Spoilers," indicates that fiction may have as high or higher aim than fact, for, in addition to telling a gripping and absorbing story, he has reflected certain phases of civilization's advance that will never come again. Undoubtedly this western world has experienced the last of the great gold rushes. These picturesque and frenzied pilgrimages that commenced with the Spanish invasion were continued with the journeys of the Argonauts over the great plains and the mountains of our west in the days of '49, and concluded with the toilsome rush to the Klondike, or the sailing over seas to the Arctic shores of Nome. These were potential and picturesque periods in the big advance that made a conquest of the unknown to gratify men's never-ending thirst for gold.

In providing the big "properties" for this stage that runs hundreds of miles up and down the Pacific coast, from Washington to Alaska, it was necessary to charter vessels for voyages. The steamships "Ohio" and "Santa Maria" were engaged for this service, and half a hundred vessels were leased to give life to the foreground or background of the water scenes. Special railway trains were secured; locomotives were leased to serve the desperate ventures of strong men fighting for their all to re-take their own possessions from their oppressors. In some scenes of the play, hundreds of people were employed, and the landing at Nome is as remarkable for its showing of types, as the famed bridge, "Constantinople" over which moves the panorama of nations. In this scene move the Alutians and the Eskimos, (the Aborigines); then there are sinewy invaders from far Australia, bronzed Africans who deserted the fever-belt for the new gold fields, and the all-pervasive Americans, who give the punch of power to all the proceedings. "The Spoilers" will be shown at the Palace theatre two days, March 2nd and 3rd. Matinee both days. adv

MAY EMPLOY NEW SUPERINTENDENT SOON

The Board of Trustees of the Fayette Children's Home, in all probability, employ a new superintendent and matron for the Children's Home at a meeting to be held next Tuesday.

While no official information has been received, it is understood that the three persons making the highest grades for superintendent, are Bert Taylor, Noah Carr and Tom Pinkerton, and if such is true, one of the above three will probably be employed.

WHAT YOU FIND AT BOTTOM OF THE SEA

In the March American Magazine Cleveland Moffett, writing an interesting article entitled, "Living Wonders of the Deep Sea," describes the discoveries made by scientists who, aboard the steamer "Albatross," fish all over the globe at a depth of three or four miles and bring up specimens for museums. Dr. Austin H. Clark, of the Washington National Museum, was the scientist in charge of this interesting vessel during one of her recent cruises in the Pacific. In the following extract taken from his article Mr. Moffett reports a highly entertaining conversation he had with Dr. Clark:

"I inquired how far down in the ocean life is found, and the scientist replied that, while soundings have been taken to a depth of six miles, no traces of life have been found much below the four-mile level, and oceanographers believe that at the bottom of the great ocean abyss, say at the five or six-mile levels, no life exists or can exist. "Because of the immense pressure?" "No, because of the lack of food. You might think that food would sink to the bottom, since some of the deepest areas are near the shores, notably north of the West Indies, east of Japan, south of Newfoundland, and, deepest of all, east of the Island of Guam. Undoubtedly there is an abundant food supply on the surface of the ocean at these points, yet none of it in sinking will reach the bottom, for the reason that whatever, is not devoured on its way down by creatures of the sea will be dissolved in the lower levels, where the solubility of water is greatly increased, owing to the increased pressure. Not only is it believed that practically all animal and vegetable matter is dissolved at a depth of five or six miles, but the softer bones of animals are probably dissolved, leaving only the very hardest ones to reach the bottom. Thus the trawl nets bring up from great depths sharks' teeth and the ear bones of whales, which are extremely hard, but very rarely other bones."
